

Pssst!

Books are Talking at the Library of Michigan!

Even with more than 40,000 books on cassette, the Library of Michigan Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped (SBPH) is more than just talk. This library offers all kinds of alternate formats and adaptive technologies to people who are unable to use standard print due to a visual or physical disability.

Lansing residents Jim and Arlene Moore enjoy the wide variety of talking books and described videos available from SBPH. "The people here are very helpful," Arlene says. "Whenever Jim or I hear about a certain book, we usually run over here to see if SBPH has it."

Stop by and listen to what you're missing at the Library of Michigan.

Visit or call the Library of Michigan Service for the Blind and Physically Handicapped at 1-800-992-9012

Library of Michigan
717 West Allegan • Lansing, MI 48915
517-373-5614
www.libraryofmichigan.org

Monday - Friday: 8:00 a.m. - 5:00 p.m.